

From Lynn Collins South Carolina :

CommuniBee is just expanding to include full website capability and fundraising parts.

From Joe Kern - UF Gator Band Alumni, Pres Elect

We put the QR code on the back of our nametag

From David Wheeler - UT Longhorn Alumni Band

Longhorn Alumni Band uses the QR code system and it works really well.

From Fla St Natalie

The QR code is so smart!!

From Val Price Razorback Alumni Society

Are any of the Alumni bands allowed to sit in with the current band or next to current band in the stands,?

From Joe Kern - UF Gator Band Alumni, Pres Elect

Yes. Gator Band alumni does but we cannot play or have instruments in the stands

From Lynn Collins South Carolina

SC typically sits in front of the current band - at least we have for the last few years. Before that we were usually beside.

From Tim Fox - Michigan State University

MSU Alumni sits right behind the student band in the stands.

From Mary DeVany, Univ of So Dak

The Sound Alumni Band : USD Alumni group sits in with the collegiate band

From Ranelle Maltas

Not at Nebraska. No space available, but we are close by.

From Candy Vernille - Pitt Band Alumni Council

Pitt Band alumni are traditionally seated next to the band for our alumni band days and are allowed to play along with them

From Ben Simon (GTBAA)

We've been able to sit in with the Georgia Tech band in recent years. The active band shrank a bit after COVID and the silver lining is there's been space in the stands for us.

From Meghan McCaskill - FSU

FSU used to be next to the current band, but they moved the current band to the other side of the stadium and have yet to move us.

From Ray - The []_ [] !

Univ. of Miami sits behind the band for the majority of the game but during the 4th quarter we usually integrate with the regular band, sitting by section.

From Deborah Dickerson/Auburn University

Auburn Alumni Band is given seats that are not used by the visiting team, so unfortunately we are on the opposite side from the student band. Wish we could sit with the students like a lot of you get to do!